State Rep. RoseLee Vincent, D-Revere, recently was recently honored by Save the Harbor/Save the Bay as “Boston Harbor Hero” at their annual Destination Boston Harbor event. Each year, the nonprofit organization acknowledges individuals whose dedication, commitment, and passion transformed Boston Harbor from a harbor of shame to a source of opportunity and pride.

Vincent was one of this year’s award recipients along with eight others, including Manny Lopes, CEO of the East Boston Neighborhood Health Center.

“I am truly humbled and honored to be recognized as a Harbor Hero, and I want to thank Save the Harbor/Save the Bay and the dynamic duo of Bruce Berman and Patty Foley,” said Vincent. “As many of you know, advocating for the maintenance and protection of Revere Beach is my passion because it is the heart and soul of our city.”

“The cleaning of Boston Harbor transformed our metropolitan beaches, and I can attest that America’s First Public Beach is an urban oasis now thanks to the efforts of Save the Harbor/Save the Bay,” Vincent continued. “As the House chair of the Metropolitan Beaches Commission, I will continue to champion our urban beaches. I want to thank Speaker DeLeo for appointing me House chair of the Commission and for his commitment to the metropolitan beaches.”

There were many familiar faces on-hand for the Save the Harbor’s Destination Boston Harbor event, including House Speaker Robert A. DeLeo, Attorney General Maura Healey, Senate Chairman of the Metropolitan Beaches Commission Tom McGee, state representatives Dan Hunt and Brendan Crighton, and Chelsea City Manager Tom Ambrosino.
